

unforeseeable delays in the onboarding process [with Merrill Lynch] his Form U4 was filed just shortly after the 2 year expiration and subsequently the exams lapsed.” Thus, as posed in the Petition, it is Merrill Lynch’s errors, actions, and 83 days of delays in the onboarding process that caused Petitioner to have to retake the Series 65 exam and experience hardship, not the application of paragraph 69W-600.0024(6)(b), Florida Administrative Code.

Further, the Office finds that the Petition fails to clearly identify or delineate the specific way paragraph 69W-600.0024(6)(b), Florida Administrative Code, violates principles of fairness by affecting Petitioner in a manner significantly different from the way it affects other similarly situated persons who have to take or retake an examination. The Office notes that Petitioner (who applied 83 days after the exam results expired) is in no different position relative to re-taking the Series 66 exam or taking the Series 65 exam than any other person whose Series 66 exam results have expired or who must take the Series 65 exam. The Petition seems to argue that Merrill Lynch’s onboarding delays resulted in the unfair treatment of the Petitioner. Thus, by Petitioner’s own admission, it is not Rule 69W-600.0024, Florida Administrative Code, that violates principles of fairness, but the delays in Merrill Lynch’s onboarding process. Resolution: The Final Order denying the Petition is based on the conclusion that Petitioner is not entitled to a waiver.
